To whom it may concern:

I am writing to you in regards to the proposed changes to the low power FM (LPFM) services as a matter of public comment.

As a loyal listener to and monthly contributor to the KLOVE national radio service I am distressed to learn that the proposed changes to the LPFM service could pose any risk at all to the service that KLOVE provides to local communities around the country.

KLOVE provides me, as a local resident of the San Jose, CA area, with a true alternative to the increasingly troubling content that local radio stations transmit. As a husband and a father of a young child I am greatly served by the positive content and spiritually compatible music, talk and messages that we find on our local KLOVE station.

Our local community has benefited from KLOVE by being able to offer our children and youth an alternative to the moral decay that is fed to them from local music stations. The current popular local music programming has continued to offer increasingly negative messages that feed our youth thoughts and images that shortens their childhood and erodes their innocence. KLOVE is a superb alternative that helps guide their impressionable minds to thoughts and topics that builds strong moral character and protect their innocence. KLOVE is very entertaining and encouraging.

Should KLOVE be replaced by a LPFM service the effect on the local community would be negative. Left to nothing but the morally questionable local content that airs now, one of the strongest encouragements we have would be gone. KLOVE continually makes calls to their listeners to get involved in a positive way in their local community. KLOVE encourages their listeners to treat others the way Christ would, with love and service that has no judgment. With KLOVE silenced, that call to the community would be silenced. We need more of this positive programming, not less.

Please do not support a change to the LPFM rules that would create any risk of any level to the KLOVE national radio network.

Sincerely,
Ron D. Nydam
